

ASIAN SECURITY SEMINAR SERIES

Australia and Japan: Going Global

Dr Malcolm Cook

Lowy Institute for International Policy

Dr Malcolm Cook is Program Director, East Asia at the Lowy Institute for International Policy. He completed a PhD in International Relations at the Australian National University. He holds a Masters degree in International Relations from the International University of Japan and an honours degree from McGill University in Canada, his country of birth. Before moving to Australia in 2000, Dr Cook lived and worked in the Philippines, South Korea and Japan and spent much time in Singapore and Malaysia. Before joining the Lowy Institute in November 2003, he ran his own consulting practice on East Asian political and economic policy reform and risk analysis. He is the author of Banking reform in Southeast Asia, (Routledge, 2008), in addition to numerous op-ed pieces, academic journal articles and policy reports. In this seminar, Dr Cook proposes a new agenda for multilateral cooperation between Australia and Japan.

The ANU and Lowy Institute, both recipients of Australia Japan Foundation Support are collaborating on our respective projects by bringing Dr Malcom Cook to the ANU to present some of the preliminary finding of their project and to cross-compare their findings with ours to date.

Friday 19 June, 2.00-3.30pm

Lecture Theatre 2 (Rm 1.09), Hedley Bull Centre, Garran Road, ANU Campus

Enquiries: Dr Brendan Taylor (ph 6125 9928) or email brendan.taylor@anu.edu.au

This seminar is supported by Australia Japan Foundation,
Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade.